Our Children Need Your Support This Summer!

Summer is a difficult time for many children. During the summer months, children in stressful situations may lose access to important resources including a daily meal or a safe space.

Council for Children's Rights advocates for our community's children year-round. Our advocacy approach addresses the whole of our child-clients' lives, from their physical and mental health needs, to their educational and housing needs.

Children should be able to enjoy their childhood without fear. We represent our child-clients' best interests in each case we represent, providing them with a voice and understanding of their constitutional rights.

In the community at-large, we advocate for systemic changes that support our mission of improved outcomes for children across agencies and infrastructure.

In June, Khali Yoga Center hosted "Big Kids Club: Free Your Inner Child," an event benefitting Council for Children's Rights! This event allowed our team to make meaningful new connections and share our story.

Khali Yoga, located in the NoDa neighborhood of Charlotte, provided a beautiful space for us to come together for an important cause, while also serving as a reminder of the importance of addressing mental health needs within our community.

With their generous support, we were able to raise over $4,000! These donations will allow us to continue providing life-changing services to children and working towards a better future for all children, not only those we serve.

We are so grateful to the Khali Yoga team and Iman McAllister for their support and hard work to make this event a huge success
