UNCC Honors Dontá L. Wilson with Named Building

The newest residence hall at the University of North Carolina at Charlotte was renamed Wilson Hall in honor of Dontá L. Wilson, a Charlotte alumnus who serves as the vice chair on the Board of Trustees. Wilson Hall is Charlotte's first residence hall named after an African American. The freshman-only, traditional-style residence hall boasts six floors and 676 beds, making it the highest-capacity dorm on Charlotte's campus.
